

Employment First Resource List

Revised April 2013

Introduction

Over the past decade, the concept of Employment First – the idea that employment in integrated settings within the community should be the priority service option - has emerged in the disability field. The result has been ongoing development of a multitude of documents pertaining to Employment First, including state legislation, policies, reports, articles, etc. The attached list, developed by the State Employment Leadership Network (SELN), is an attempt to provide a comprehensive listing of these documents, as a resource to policymakers, advocates, and others. A primary emphasis with this list has been to identify legislation, regulations, and policy directives implementing Employment First policies. The list also lists a variety of reports from individual states, including those from grassroots initiatives consisting of coalitions of stakeholders working to affect change. In addition, a variety of documents that provide a national perspective have been included.

In compiling this list, an Employment First policy has been defined as an official directive from a state government agency stating that employment in the community in the general workforce is the first and primary option for individuals with disabilities and/or it is the intent of the state to move in that direction. Use of the term “Employment First” per se has not necessarily been a requirement for including or excluding a document. Instead the focus has been on documents that reinforce the principles of Employment First, whether that specific language is used or not. There are number of examples (e.g., Washington State, Oklahoma) where the term “Employment First” is not part of the policy, and yet clearly the policy is an example of Employment First principles. It should also be noted that there has been a liberal approach to defining a piece of legislation, regulation, or policy directive as an “Employment First policy”. For example, California AB 287, passed in 2009, calls for development of an Employment First policy. However, the actual policy is still under development, including proposed legislation that has yet to be passed. In Maine, the Department of Health and Human Services has a policy put in place in 2010 stating that the “Department of Health and Human Services shall support career development and meaningful employment for all working aged individuals receiving services through the Department”. While not explicitly stating that employment is the first service priority, we have decided to include this Maine policy, as the language “all working aged individuals receiving services” is in the spirit of Employment First. Maine is currently working on Employment First legislation that specifically states that employment in the community is the first and preferred service option.

A summary of the status of Employment First nationally is as follows:

- Twenty-two states have been identified that have something akin to an official Employment First policy (based on legislation, policy directive, etc.). Seven states have passed legislation: California, Delaware, Kansas, Pennsylvania, Virginia, Utah, and Washington. The other 15 (Arkansas, Colorado, Connecticut, Louisiana, Maine, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, Missouri, New Jersey, Ohio, Oklahoma, Oregon, Rhode Island, Tennessee) have a policy directive, Executive Order, or similar official policy statement, but not legislation.
- Eight of these policies are cross-disability: Arkansas, Delaware, Kansas, Maine, Michigan, New Jersey, Virginia, and Utah. The remainder of states with policies, have policies that focus exclusively on individuals with intellectual and developmental disabilities: California, Colorado,

Connecticut, Louisiana, Maryland, Massachusetts, Missouri, Ohio, Oklahoma, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, Tennessee, Washington.

- In addition to the 22 states with Employment First policies, the other 13 states on this list (Florida, Georgia, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Minnesota, Mississippi, New Mexico, New York, North Carolina, North Dakota, Texas, Wisconsin) have Employment First efforts and initiatives underway, but at this point it appears no official Employment First policy has been issued.

It is important to recognize that the presence or lack of presence on this list of any state should not necessarily be an indicator regarding the state's focus on employment for people with disabilities. There are a number of states that have not been linked with Employment First, who have consistently had relatively strong outcomes in terms of employment of people with disabilities. However, the emergence of Employment First as a national movement has served as a catalyst for an increased focus on employment of people with disabilities across the United States.

In the course of developing this document, the focus has been on including as many examples as possible, particularly in terms of resources from individual states. The underlying rationale for doing so is to provide an understanding of the wide range of approaches to Employment First. Inclusion of specific policies and documents on this list should in no way be viewed as an endorsement of these documents, and in fact, the Employment First legislation/policies that have been developed vary significantly in terms of the strength and clarity of their language.

The wide range of attention and emphasis on Employment First has been encouraging, and provides a potential catalyst for the long needed increase in workforce participation for individuals with disabilities. At the same time, it is important to recognize that creation of documents, reports, and policies, in and of itself, will not result in increase in workforce participation, without a long-term commitment to action steps that make the Employment First vision a reality for all citizens with disabilities.
